Truckload of coal which caved through pavement, above, and falling houses caused by coal mines under Scranton streets.

Coal mines which are being dug under streets of Scranton, Pa., are causing many accidents and are dangerous to traffic. Falling houses and caved-in walls are to be found on many of the streets and nothing has been done to help the residents.

The photographs shows a coal truck which sank right through the pavement which was insecurely propped up.

LABOR WELCOMES ASSISTANCE, A. F. L. HEAD DECLARES

Labor Is Rightfully Suspicious of Changes Introduced Without Explanation and Effect Is Not Considered.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Organized labor will welcome whatever assistance research and science can offer to modern industry, President Compers, of the American Federation of Labor, told delegates gathered here today for the preliminary conference on industrial research. A part of organized labor's own work, he said, has been directed toward the scientific study of conditions surrounding production and to the assemblage of data.

"A persistent effort has been made to saddle upon labor the odium of opposition to improved methods and machinery in production," Mr. Compers said. "This is not true as a general statement. What labor has opposed is an effort to exploit them by the use of improvements that are intended as a blessing to mankind. Labor is rightly suspicious of changes which are introduced without explanation and whose effect upon their welfare is not considered."

"Labor is not opposed to increased production or improved methods. Quite the contrary. We recognize there can be no permanent betterment of standards of living for all except by increasing the things that contribute to better and more satisfactory living, but we hold as a fundamental principle that material products are not the ultimate of production, but service in a better life for humanity."

"I take it all of us have too much vision and experience to think we can solve the labor problem. That is a life problem that will last as long as life."

"This conference is concerned with the field of industrial government which we can for convenience divide under two heads, the law-making function and the administration. Experience has taught organized labor that we can only maintain opportunity for freedom and well-being when laws for industry are made by those directly concerned—the management and the workers."

"Clearly the formulation of laws to govern industry is not to be the function of any organization suggested by this conference. Science and research may furnish the law-making function and the administration. Experience has taught organized labor that we can only maintain opportunity for freedom and well-being when laws for industry are made by those directly concerned—the management and the workers."

MEMPHIS CONCERN LEADING COUNTRY IN DAILY SPACE

Piggly Wiggly Uses 10,000 Inches a Week for 500 Stores in 150 Cities--Burch Praises Afternoon Papers.

A Memphis concern uses more space in the daily newspapers of the United States than any other company.

At least this is the deduction from a five-page article in "Judicious Advertising," well-known magazine, issued by the Lord & Thomas Publishing house, Chicago.

In this article the mammoth organization which Clarence Saunders has built up is credited with using 10,000 inches a week in the daily papers of 150 American cities.

The article not only reprints some of the best advertisements of Piggly Wiggly, but it contains a long interview with John Burch, the advertising man who has played no small part in the success of Saunders and the Piggly Wiggly stores. Incidentally Burch pays a high tribute to the pulling power of the daily paper and especially the afternoon newspaper, which is either delivered to the home or carried home by the purchaser.

Best by Test.

"The daily papers are practically the only medium used," says Burch. "We have found by experience that we get better results from the papers than from any other medium for the following reasons:

"We can reach more people in the shortest time and at the least expense through the papers."

"By using the papers we can quote prices and follow closely the changes in the markets."

"We have found that advertising in the daily papers produces immediate results. We also know that this form of advertising constantly brings new customers. A woman will buy elsewhere a few items and in looking over Piggly Wiggly ads she will find that she could have saved several cents on each item. So the next time she is in need of one of these items she will go to a Piggly Wiggly store. Once she enters a Piggly Wiggly store she will continue to return as the privilege of selecting goods without interruption or persuasion from anyone appeals to most housewives and the clearest and most orderly arrangement of the goods unconsciously has its effect on the customer."

"There are now more than 500 Piggly Wiggly stores in various cities of the United States and the number is being increased almost daily. Its monthly business runs into millions."

NATIONAL GRANGE CONDEMNS UNION

Unwarranted Strike Severely Criticized in Strong Resolutions.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—The appearance at the annual sessions of the National Grange of its monthly magazine with two pages blank was explained at a meeting of the board of managers by the editor, Charles M. Gardner, former master of the Massachusetts grange, as due to a strike of printers for more pay.

The editor said the type for these two pages had been set, but not locked, before the strike started, and that when he and his foreman locked up the pages the typesetters refused to handle them because of his own nonunion labor. Several hundred copies of the magazine then were printed with the two pages blank, and it was voted by the board of managers to print the full circulation of 50,000 in this way, with an explanation later of the cause.

After discussion of the incident by the convention, in which it was brought out that the strike was not against the magazine, but against the shop in which it was printed, the National Grange went on record in resolutions as approving the action of the board of managers and commending them "for refusing to permit the necessities of the National Grange being made use of in an attempt by labor leaders to compel a forced settlement and acceptance of their demands."

In the preamble to the resolutions, it was stated that the board of managers had made a report which showed that the printing of the monthly with two pages blank was due to "the unwarranted strike of the union printers in a printing plant at Springfield, Mass., and the refusal of the union pressmen to print the pages made ready by the managing editor of the monthly and the foreman of the office when the printers struck."

The honeymoon is not positively over, until the first time a man tries to square himself with his wife by offering her a check instead of a kiss and succeeds.
